Day One: Tuesday 21 May Morning

08.00-09.00 Registration and refreshments

09.00-09.20

Chair's opening remarks

Nazanine Moshiri, Senior Analyst, Climate, Environment & Conflict, Africa, International Crisis Group

09.20-09.50

Keynote: Is East Africa's time now?

After years of economic pressures and sovereign debt concerns, the East African economy is riding a wave of optimism and opportunity in trade finance and infrastructure investment. This keynote overview of the region will explore themes including:

- Has Kenya's economy turned a corner and will reforms be sufficient to avoid further fiscal pressures?
- Is Tanzania's investment potential sustainable even after the next electoral cycle?
- What are the prospects for peace and debt restructuring in Ethiopia?
- Is Uganda steering towards inevitable default? And will Rwanda's investment potential hold up?

Robert Besseling, Chief Executive Officer & Founder, Pangea-Risk

09.50-10.35

The butterfly effect: Equipping trade to thrive in a volatile environment

Regional economies find themselves subject to an evolving and highly unpredictable set of external influences, from the impact of sovereign debt sustainability concerns, FX volatility and inflationary pressures, an expanding raft of ESG regulations and the associated climate financing priorities, to the Red Sea crisis, ongoing supply chain disruption, and multipolar global geopolitics.

Our opening panel will seek to clarify the primary trends, risks and bright spots related to economic development and trade growth across the region, sharing perspectives on the initiatives that can open trade growth and financing opportunities, bolstering the resilience of crucial industry sectors and companies of all sizes:

- Red Sea Crisis: Have international supply lines proven more agile in response? How are trade and logistics sectors responding?

- Sovereign debt, FX and inflationary pressure: To what extent are regional economies able to withstand further external shocks? What can be done to bolster trade sector resilience?
- Beyond renewables: Are climate financing opportunities increasingly emerging across other industries? Where can the greatest positive impact be achieved in an East African context?

Moderator: Nazanine Moshiri, Senior Analyst, Climate, Environment & Conflict, Africa, International Crisis Group

Allen Asimwe, Chief Programme Officer & Deputy CEO, TradeMark Africa

Beverly Ochieng, Senior Digital Journalist & Africa Specialist, BBC Monitoring

Felister Kivisi, Senior Advisor, Sovereign Finance & Debt Management, TDB

Shuichi Hayashida, Head of West & Central Africa, MIGA

Ramesh Moochikal, Chief Executive Officer, Africa Improved Foods

10.35-11.25 Networking break

11.25-12.10

Addressing hard currency liquidity challenges: Is trade finance up to the task?

Dollar shortages continue to drag on East Africa's financial sector; even those markets that have fared recent crises well such as Tanzania have experienced constricted supply in recent months. MSMEs continue to feel the effects most acutely, with anticipated increase of regulatory fees on banks and microfinance institutions across Kenya set to compound the disadvantages African trade finance already faces due to global financial regulation. What can be done to ensure critical liquidity continues to flow into local banking and corporate sectors, and is trade finance up to the task?

Our panel of financing and tech experts will offer their take on the root causes of these shortages across the region, and how these feed into trade financing challenges faced at industry and company level.

Debate will explore the need for – and challenges to – international bank and development finance support for local financiers and corporates, and how both local and international players can best adapt to a hardened trade finance environment: Do foreign risk off-takers' and lenders' expectations fail to take the realities of African trade sufficiently into account, and to what extent is their ability to do so constrained? Which practical steps can local institutions and companies take to maximise the trade finance liquidity available to them?

Moderator: Simon Cook, Partner, Sullivan & Worcester UK

Grace Murage, Regional Head, Financial Institutions, East & Southern Africa, Rand Merchant Bank

Duarte Pedreira, Head of Trade Finance, Crown Agents Bank; Board Member, ITFA

Carol Kihuna, Senior Trade Product Manager, Treasury & Trade Solutions, Citi

Freddie Tucker, Investment Director, Financial Services Group, British International Investment

12.10-12.30

Empowering local banks to deliver sustainable economic growth

With the causes of Africa's growing trade finance gap now well established the leading minds on the continent have turned to practical, scalable solutions capable of addressing a problem that is hugely detrimental to prospects for Africa's SDG-aligned economic diversification and growth. This informal interview will highlight the critical role of local banking sectors in providing trade finance to the African SMEs that will ultimately drive that growth, sharing practical insight on a ground-breaking deal structure that holds the potential to transform local institutions' capacity to support their SME clients.

George Wilson, Head, Institutional Trade Finance, Investec; Chair of Africa Regional Committee, ITFA

The critical need for enhanced collaboration and innovation to tackle food insecurity

Set against a geopolitical landscape that already poses a severe food security issue to the continent, El Niño is expected to further compound an acute challenge. Humanitarian initiatives have established agricultural supply chains capable of mitigating the worst effects, while the private agribusiness and finance sectors continue to build climate resilience into agri value chains through the deployment of innovative technology. This discussion will consider the primary climate risks faced across Africa's agribusiness sector, how they can be mitigated to enhance financing, and how private sector expertise can be leveraged to combat humanitarian crises on the continent: Which innovative business models, financing structures and risk mitigation tools are driving efficiency and resilience? Where could deeper collaboration further improve African food security, and how can private agribusiness and finance sector participation be blended into food security initiatives?

Moderator: Zhann Meyer, Head, Agricultural Commodities, Nedbank

Florian Wicht, Regional Lead, Trade & Supply Chain Finance, Africa, International Finance Corporation (IFC)

Wouter Kool, General Manager, Kenya, Rabobank

Abhishek Jain, Group Chief Risk Officer, ETG

Lauren Landis, Representative & Country Director for Kenya, UN World Food Programme

Sarfraz Shah, Chief Insurance Officer – Global Insurance Operations, Pula Advisors

13.15-14.35 Networking lunch

“The conference was extremely insightful and an innovative experience to connect with individuals from different parts of the world and different financial and global networks.”

B Mehta, Thames Electricians

Day One: Tuesday 21 May Afternoon

14.35-15.00

Solution showcase: What an end-to-end digital lending and SCF solution looks like

Supply chain finance is on the rise in East Africa; with banks and corporates alike bridging access to financing for small businesses through SCF structures, the need for digitisation has never been more pressing. Digital systems with rigid workflows and non-SCF loan management systems lead to lost opportunities.

This session will showcase an end-to-end product stack that seamlessly digitises onboarding, multi-facility underwriting using a low-code platform, and SCF loan management, allowing lenders to rely on a single technology provider for an out-of-the-box solution. It will also highlight how having the right technology partner armed with the correct domain expertise can help Kenyan and regional FIs gain an edge over the competition.

Sreejith Nair, Director, Growth Strategy,
Veeva Solutions

15.00-15.50

Chasing the tail: Supply chain finance and the search for network effect

While uptake of supply chain financing (SCF) remains nascent across Africa in comparison to more established SCF markets globally, a core of banks, financing and technology providers continue to pursue the critical mass that holds transformational potential for African trade, and in particular the financing of those SME suppliers in the 'long tail' of the supply chain. Assessing the barriers to adoption of this financing tool and associated technologies across the region, this discussion will consider the regulatory environment as relates to both financing and data, tackling the issue of mistrust around data sharing and misconceptions of data insecurity. Further conversation will highlight the role of digital SCF platforms in enabling a diversified liquidity pool to participate in supplier finance programmes and reduce frictions encountered in the on-boarding process, debating how true network effect can be achieved across East Africa's SCF space: the buy-in of large corporate buyers is a necessity to get programmes off the ground, but to what extent does supplier onboarding present the toughest challenge?

Moderator: John Kinyangi, Head, Supply Chain Financing & Working Capital, Standard Bank Group

Oluwale Ajiboye, Treasury Manager, Operations & Payments, Guinness Nigeria

Allan Musona, Founder & Executive Chairman, Raindeu Trade

Hillary Oonge, Chief Financial Officer, Pezesha

Amine Dahmani, Director, Trade Finance, Wasoko

Patrick Makau, Executive Principal, Head of Trade & Working Capital, Kenya & East Africa, Standard Chartered

Annerose Ngemu, Senior Manager, Strategy & Innovations, Afreximbank

15.50-16.20 Networking break

16.20-17.10

The role of the local insurance market in enhancing sovereign and infrastructure financing

International bond markets remain a challenging space for Africa's sovereign borrowers, with Kenya's commitment to repurchasing as much as $1.44 billion of bonds in 2024 through the issuance of a double digit yield Eurobond earlier this year a clear indication. With this primary source of infrastructure financing currently beyond the reach of many sovereigns, demand looks set to outstrip supply.

How can the local insurance market play a role in filling these gaps? This expert group will assess the extent to which this sector can meet infrastructure financing demand across the region, identifying where gaps are likely to remain, and the potential of DFI support and local currency transactions to maintain the project pipeline.

- Updating on sovereign debt sustainability concerns, restructurings and prospects for bond issuance across the continent
- Appetite and capacity: Are sovereigns competing for the remainder of region or country limits? Are banks becoming more selective, and which characteristics make projects bankable?
- Highlighting DFI support success stories, and the growth of local currency financing
- Closing debate: Are ESG requirements pushing the search for infrastructure finance Eastwards? Is Chinese support for these deals still there?

Moderator: Robert Besseling, Chief Executive Officer & Founder, Pangea-Risk

Genevieve Ahinful, Head of Political Risk & Trade Credit, Africa Specialty Risks

Surabhi Visser, Chief Investment Officer, GuarantCo

Albert Rweyemamu, Principal Underwriter, African Trade & Investment Development Insurance

Sekete Mokgehele, Co-Head, Africa Infrastructure Finance, Nedbank

17.10

Close of Day One*Followed by evening networking reception

Day Two: Wednesday 22 May

09.00-09.20

Chair's opening remarks

Keynote address: Reinforcing trade finance to withstand a volatile business environment

Economic and financial market conditions have hardened rapidly since the turn of the decade, with the role of development finance institutions in mitigating negative impacts on Africa's trade finance markets remaining critical. Instrumental support for extant trade and financing flows has extended to key digitisation and local currency finance initiatives aimed at future-proofing industrialisation, economic diversification and intra-regional trade growth across the continent. Our Day 2 keynote will offer analysis of the evolving challenges faced by East Africa's trade finance sector in the near to medium term, and how those operating within the region can access and utilise Afreximbank support.

Kudakwashe Matereke, Regional Chief Operating Officer for East Africa, Afreximbank

“The best forum for discussing matters on trade and global economy.”

C Osonga, Victoria Commercial Bank

“A great opportunity to learn about the latest trends and network with attendees.”

R Agarwal, GiveDirectly

09.45-10.35

Early payment as growth driver: Releasing working capital trapped in trade receivables

The South African market displays the growth potential of factoring, or trade receivables discounting, being home to the vast majority of a market estimated at over US$40bn across Africa. This poses the question of an opportunity missed across the rest of the continent: nascent factoring markets such as those in East Africa are poised to transform financing availability, particularly for SMEs. Kicking off our day 2 agenda's focus on deal structuring and practical trade financing knowledge, this informal interview will assess the opportunity to encourage new and potentially cheaper trade liquidity into East African markets through receivables financing structures and factoring intermediaries, gauging challenges linked to digitisation and data sharing, and offering insight on how the participation of investors, lenders and smaller companies can be maximised to support trade growth across the region.

Moderator: Nassourou Aminou, Regional Manager, Africa, FCI

Arnaud Levasseur, Team leader, Global Trade Solutions, Corporate and Institutional Banking SBU, Mauritius Commercial Bank

Anne-Marie Woolley, Chief Executive Officer, Africa Global Trade Finance

“A revolutionary experience made available to trade finance professionals and players.”

L Kiruja, Bank of Africa, Kenya

“Very informative and excellent speakers who are knowledgeable in their areas of specialisation.”

S Nambiro, KCB Bank

10.35-11.00

Case study: Promoting food security and nutritional health with sustainable trade finance

This case study will demonstrate how sustainable trade finance is supporting a leading regional corporate's efforts to meet their strategic priorities in providing food security and nutritional value to vulnerable groups when they need it the most. Gain insights on the growth of this local company into a regional player, exploring their sustainability priorities and how trade finance facilities are shaping the management of local production, logistics efficiencies and time to market in response to a crisis, boosting critical capabilities that ensure crucial support for the nutritional value chain in line with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals.

Nikita Chandaria, Co-CEO, Insta Products

11.00-11.40 Networking break

11.40-12.25

Industry outlook: A return to private market solutions in the energy sector

With the Kenyan government signalling intent to exit the G2G oil supply deal agreed with three national oil exporters from the Persian Gulf the region's importers and suppliers must once again pivot to maintain the flow of trade in this critical commodity. Sharing first hand experiences from marketers and financiers, this discussion will review the impact of the G2G deal on business operations, highlighting the supply chain and trade financing priorities taking shape in anticipation of a return to private market solutions in Kenya's energy sector.

Moderator: Edwin Baru, Partner, Projects, Energy & Infrastructure, Bowmans

Manasseh Otieno, Managing Director, Jaguar Petroleum

Phanice Mokua, Trade Specialist, Stanbic Bank Kenya
Catherine Busaule, Senior Business Development Manager, Trade Finance, KCB

Building resilience: The call for crisis-proof financing solutions and crisis-ready leaders

Considering expectations for the impact of macroeconomic and geopolitical influences on trade and financing flows in the near-term, this panel of business leaders will share insight on how they are helping their organisations prepare for immediate and long-term challenges, from maximising financing opportunities and optimising working capital in a hardened market environment, to the key use-cases for new technologies such as generative AI in their respective industry verticals, opportunities and challenges around the energy transition and the need to build climate resilience into trade operations, as well as the crucial importance of fostering diversity throughout the workforce and wider trade sector.
